In this section we are going to have a look at adjectives ending in -ed and -ing. Our teacher says these are important when it comes to describing our jobs and what they make us feel. He has prepared some activities for us to practice. Let's have a look at them!

Participial adjectives

grammar (CC0)

-ED/-ING FORMS

There's a difference between adjectives ending in -ed and adjectives ending in -ing.

The -ed form describes the way someone feels whereas the -ing form describes a situation, a thing, or a person.

Thus, if I say " I am bored", it describes the way I feel. However, if I say "I am boring" it will describe me, my personality.

I can say "I am bored because my job is boring", bored describes the way I feel, and boring describes my job.

Study this chart:

-ed

Adjectives ending in -ed describe the way someone feels

"He is thrilled with his job"
"I am excited about this course"

-ing

Adjectives ending in -ing describe a situation, a thing or a person

"*The job is thrilling" or "This is a thrilling job"
"*The course is exciting" or "This is an exciting course"

Practice

There is a varied range of practice, from a word wheel or fill in the gaps to multiple choice and a listening comprehension exercise. Once you have finished this, you will find "a step ahead" section where you can find several online, interactive exercises to work on your own.

In the world of work, there are two main types of job skills, [ ] skills and [ ] skills. Hard skills are the specific [ ] and [ ] needed for a particular [ ] or [ ] . For example, if you're a computer programmer, you need hard skills like [ ] and [ ] development. If you're a [ ] , you need hard skills in [ ] and [ ] preparation. These skills are usually [ ] through [ ] or [ ] . Soft skills, on the other hand, are the personal [ ] and [ ] that help you work well with others and succeed in any job. Examples of soft skills include [ ] , [ ] , [ ] solving and time [ ] . These skills are often developed through [ ] and [ ] . When it comes to which type of skill is more important, it really depends on the job.

Some jobs require strong hard skills like [ ] or [ ] , while others place more emphasis on soft skills like [ ] service or [ ] . In reality, both types of skills are [ ] and [ ] each other. Having a [ ] of hard and soft skills can make you a well-rounded and [ ] employee.

Planning for Success: Setting Goals for Your Future

Welcome to our special feature on setting goals for the future! As you embark on your journey post-high school, it's crucial to have a roadmap in place to help you navigate the exciting opportunities that lie ahead

Setting goals is like creating a personal GPS system that guides you towards your dreams and aspirations. Whether you aspire to start your own business, pursue further education, or travel the world, having well-defined goals can pave the way for your success.

"I aim to start my own sustainable business within the next five years."

1. Achievable goals
2. Aim high
3. Track your progress

Achievable targets

First and foremost, it's essential to establish clear and specific goals. Instead of saying, "I want to be successful," try setting a goal like, "I aim to start my own sustainable business within the next five years." Specific goals provide you with a clear target to aim for and make it easier to track your progress.

Next, set achievable targets. While it's fantastic to dream big, setting goals that are within your reach is key to staying motivated. Break down your long-term goals into smaller, manageable steps that you can work on each day. This incremental progress will keep you motivated and focused on the bigger picture.

Prioritize your goals

Moreover, prioritize your goals based on their importance and relevance to your overall vision. Some goals may have more immediate importance, such as securing a part-time job to fund your college education, while others may be long-term objectives, like learning a new language or skill.
Remember to create a timeline for your goals. Setting deadlines can give you a sense of urgency and help you stay on track. Use tools like calendars, planners, or digital apps to schedule your tasks and monitor your progress.
